Brief Mention.

The rummage sale for the benefit of the poor of St. John's parish was opened yesterday afternoon at 1857 82d street. An unusually large number of articles were donated for the purpose, embracing nearly everything in household furniture and wearing apparel, and including ornaments, bric-a-brac, and the like. A special committee of gentlemen and ladies is in charge of the affair, and the sales yesterday were quite encouraging.

RESULT OF FIRE. Mayer & Pettit's Estalishment Loses

The fire at Mayer & Pettit's Thursday did not result in closing all the departments, the furniture rooms opening again yesterday and today, as usual. A member of the firm in conversation with a Star reporter said he thought the damage to the stock would amount to about $10,000, although it will be several days before the exact figures can be given.

The police estimate of the damage to the stock is between $10,000 and $15,000, while the damage to the building is placed at $1.500. Fire Marshal Drew's report gives

$6,000 and $300 to the building. Benjamin Banneker and Thomas Jef-

To the Editor of The Evening Star: A communication was published in The Star of October 30 asking for the authority to justify the statement of a correspondent that Thomas Jefferson entertained at dinner

Benjamin Banneker and disputing the statement because the writer had failed to find it in Latrobe's account of Banneker, or in Mrs. Tyson's life of him. Now, it must cident in either account is not evidence one way or the other, and, as is generally the case, new facts in regard to the fathers of the country are constantly being drawn out by happenings of today, and this is one of them. Mrs. Martha Tyson, who was the daughter of George Ellicott, Banneker's warm friend, sought her information in re-gard to Banneker at Ellicott's Mills nearly fifty years after Banneker's death, by conversing with those who had known him. It is plain that all who personally saw him and gave her information must have been ably were little likely to know of such a matter as the Jefferson dinner, since Jefferson lived several hundred miles away. But the probability of its truth may be established by facts in the life of Jefferson which may show that he had no such antipathy or caste spirit as would render such a thing improbable. I am not able to affirm that Jefferson did entertain at dinner Benjamin Banneker, but I am able to prove that he invited, in 1815, Mr. Julius Melbourn, a colored man, born a slave in North Carolina, to be one of a dinner party, the others being James Monroe, afterward President of the United States; Wm. Wirt, John Randolph, etc. Mr. Melbourn bore a letter of introduction to Jefferson from his friend Mr. Pendleton. The fact that Mel-bourn had been born a slave was well known to Jefferson, and at the dinner party, over the wine and walnuts, the whole com-pany discussed the matter. General George pany discussed the matter. General George Washington had no such antipathy to the race with which Banneker was identified as is now exhibited in a small section of our country, and in the small section referred to the antipathy or aversion is limited to the male members of the colored race. General Washington slept in bed with Primus Hall, a young mulatto, valet to Colonel Pickering, Washington's friend. The account will be found in Godey's Lady's Book or Magazine for 1849, the facts being contributed by the Reviews. Harrington. Color sliculd never, among a Christian people, be should never, among a Ohristian people, be made a test of merit, new can I recall an inshould never, among a Christian people, be made a test of merit, new can I recall an instance where any Christian has done so. It is inconsistent with the examples and teachings of Christ. I cannot recall where any gentleman has dore so, being reminded that to be a gentleman one must follow the precepts of Christianity, and when one departs from acting in harmony with Christian principles in dealing with his fellow man he ceases to be a gentleman. A man who had nothing else to recommend him save his color would not be an acceptable guest at any gentleman's table, and one who has everything else should not be excluded. The Sermon on the Mount would have been delivered in vain had no practical examples of its spirit been exhibited among men. Mrs. Tyson says of Banneker: "His striking superiority over all men of his race led them to disregard all prejudice of caste" (the same with Booker T. Washinging). "He was invited to sit at table with the engineer corps." According to the southern dictum laid down for President Roosevelt, neither Robert Browning nor Alexander Hamilton, were they living, could have sat at any southern white man's table, since both were octoroons. Jefferson could not have sat down at table with his own children according to a paragraph' in Marshall Hall's "Twofold Slavery in Amer-

ROCKVILLE AND VICINITY.

Additional Jurors Drawn - Bryanites Indulging in Reprisal. cial Correspondence of The Evening Star.

ROCKVILLE, Md., November 1, 1901. Mr. Jetson L. The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon from St. Mary's Catholic Church, this town.

Judge James B. Henderson has drawn the following persons to serve as jurors at the November term of the circuit court for this county in the places of those excused for various reasons: Poolesville district-William B. Trundle in place of Henry G. Smoot.

Rockville district—Albert King, Harvey
C. Fawcett in the places of Henry Reisinger and John S. Robertson.
Colesville district—James W. Johnson, William Soper and John Hutchinson in the places of Caleb Carr, George F. Phair and Richard Waters.

Bethesda district-Michael A. Cummings in the place of Mahlon R. Austin. Gaithersburg district-George W. Gaither in place of Maurice E. Phoebus.

The Rockville Woman's Club met yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Anna Farquhar about three miles from this place. Mrs. Frank Spencer presided and ten members and four visitors were present. The topic for the meeting was "The Hessians in the Revolution" and a paper appropriate to the subject was read by Miss Katherine Choate. Miss Sophie Higgins conducted a parliamentary drill, Mrs. Robert N. Bayles and Miss Belle Kingdon read selections and Mrs. O. M. Linthicum was critic. A pleasing feature of the meeting was an instrumental duet by the Misses Elbrey of Sandy Spring. Those who are known as Bryan democrats, of whom there is a large number in this county, are said to be very lukewarm in their support of the demecratic ticket this year. The control of last fall's cam-this year. The control of last fails campaign was exclusively in the hands of this element of the party, and it is no secret that they are resentful at the Gorman leaders for not giving Mr. Bryan more enthusiastic support. Some of the more prominent Bryanites have gone so far as to charge that several of those who are in charge of the present commander per only. charge of the present campaign not only voted the republican ticket last fall, but worked quietly in its interest. The demoworked quiety in its interest. The demo-cratic ticket this year is a Gorman ticket from top to bottom, and it is said that many of the friends of Mr. Bryan will vote with the republicans as a rebuke to the Gorman managers for their attitude last year. While it may not be true that any considerable number will vote against the year. While it may not be true that any considerable number will vote against the democratic nominees, it is said to be evident that they are not overexerting themselves in their behalf.

An enthusiastic rally was held last evening in the town hall at Kensington under the auspices of the McKinley, Roosevelt and Pearre Club of that place. The large hall was well filled, an unusually large number of ladies being among those present. The speakers included Messrs. Charles F. Kirk, candidate for the state senate; John G. England and William R. Windsor, candidates for the house of delegates; Charles R. Hartshorne, candidate for county commissioner; B. H. Warner, Capt. Arthur Hendricks and C. W. Clum. All of these gentlemen occupied seats upon the stage.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. C. W. Clum, who introduced Mr. James H. Massey as presiding officer. In opening the meeting Mr. Clum spoke briefly. He referred to the work done by the Kensington club since its organization several years ago, and paid a tribute to the late President. The other speakers discussed the issues of the campaign.
